Remove the mutual fund: heading and add - How to invest in mutual funds (below paragraph write a direct answer)

When investing in mutual funds, you must first identify your financial goals, evaluate your level of risk tolerance and set your investment horizon before choosing a mutual fund category. You can begin with a monthly SIP or a one-time lump-sum investment and review your investment from time to time to ensure it continues to meet your objectives.

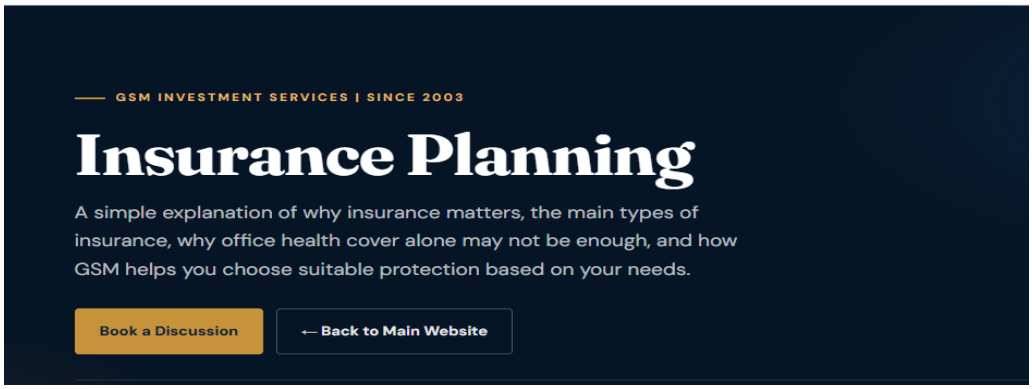

Remove What mutual funds mean in simple terms – Add (What is Mutual fund)

Here remove insurance planning – add (What is Insurance Planning and How Does It Work?) (below paragraph write a direct answer)

Insurance planning involves identifying the financial risks you face and selecting the right kind of insurance to protect both yourself and your family. The first step is to evaluate your income, the number of people who depend on you, your liabilities, your health risks, and the insurance coverage you already have. After that, you should select suitable life, health, or other types of insurance policies according to your level of protection needed and your financial circumstances.

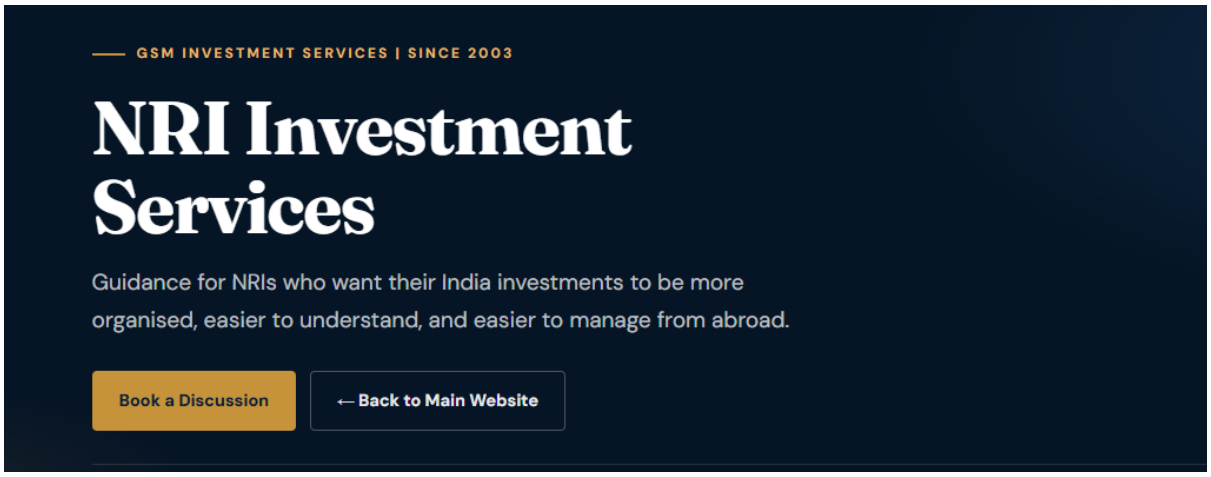

Remove the heading capital gain tax saving and add –(How can I save tax on the capital gain) (below paragraph write a direct answer)

You can save tax on capital gains using the tax exemptions and the options to reinvest your money that are available under the Income Tax Act. This will depend on the type of asset, how long you held the asset, and the amount of the capital gain. Consider investing in qualified bonds or reinvesting in specific assets that may help lower your tax liability. Before you make a choice, it is important to check your eligibility.

Remove Nri investment services (Add- How can an Nri Invest in india) (below paragraph write a direct answer)

An NRI can invest in India Through mutual funds, stocks, bonds, fixed deposits and insurance based on the financial objectives and eligibility. The investment can be made through eligible NRI account or an NRE or NRO account. The right investment will depend on risk, investment horizon, taxation, repatriation requirements and other factors.
